thailand has an elderly population of 10 per cent this paper shows how the thai elderly live both socially and economically a national survey found that 16 per cent of elderly households in the rural areas live in substandard conditions the majority of the elderly 60 rely on family support for their living while another 20 per cent work for a living and only 4 per cent have government pension thailand is now organising a national saving fund to promote savings for retirement another national survey found that 80 per cent of the population would like to save for retirement but only 48 per cent think that they can save regularly on a monthly basis this is consistent with yet another survey which found that 50 60 per cent of the elderly actually prepared themselves physically and mentally for the ageing period though the survey found the elderly to be less happy than the young they were quite healthy that is about 90 per cent of those in the 65 74 age group could take care of themselves as it is quite usual in thai culture for children to take care of their old parents more than 80 per cent of the population expect that their children will take care of them physically mentally and financially when they become old daughters usually take care of their aged parents about 45 per cent of the elderly who are older than 94 years are taken care of by a daughter or daughter in law while another 38 per cent look after themselves the united nations un projects thailand to have an old age dependency ratio of 38 in the next 30 years without income security and long term care schemes for the elderly it would be very difficult for working children to take care of their parents in the future doing business in thailand is very different from doing business anywhere else in asia there are a variety of cultural religious and historical reasons for this in addition thai law has developed over the centuries with many unique features knowing your products or services and being a good manager just isn t enough to be successful in thailand it is equally important to accept the fact that business operates at much slower pace and to understand that thai people tend to mix their professional and private lifedoing business only when friendship and trust have developed between the parties the business guide to thailand gives you the inside story on doing business in thailand the business guides are aimed at business people requiring an accurate and up to date guide to how business is organised and regulated in asia all contributors are experts and specialists in their fields providing you with an unparalleled wealth of insider knowledge each chapter is packed with the kind of information and advice usually available only to elite clients with large budgets for outside consultants business guides aim to cover negotiation preparation marketing and distribution foreign trade taxation customs intellectual property business law foreign investment financing economic conditions and trends detailed technical information normally only available from consultants part of the business guide series
